A Negro Girl Sentenced to be Hung for Killing a Little Boy----Her Confession.

A negro girl called Eliza has just been sentenced to be hanged in Newcastle, Ky., for the murder of Walter Graves, three years old. Eliza is twelve years old, and was employed as nurse by Mrs. Graves, and had been with them a month. They placed confidence in her, as she appeared to love the children; but in an evil hour she committed this act, or assisted to do it, as many think. She was brought in and placed before the Judge, approaching the stand with a child-like air, showing her utter ignorance of the horrible crime that had been committed, which she was accessory to, it not principal. The Judge, with a solemn mein, pronounced the most awful sentence of the law, and she received the dreadful sentence with that indifference that shows that she is scarcely above the brute at the slaughter-pen, and does not know its meaning any more than it does. She made a confession which implicates another negro, (a woman named Lucy,) and which she has done all along." It runs as follows:

I gave Walter a piece of candy early in the morning, and that made Lucy mad—because I did not give it to Lucy's children—and she said: "What do white folks care for niggers now!" Little Walter got up, and I dressed him, and I told him to go and kiss his little sister, which he did. She was asleep in the cradle. I then gave him another piece, and said "sweet boy," and Lucy said, "Yes, he will be sweet before night" I asked her what she meant, and she said, "Mind your own business!" and she went into the house. In the evening I was hauling him around in his little wagon, and Lucy called me and asked me to get her some hay out of the loft, which I did. Mrs. Graves was making some preserves, and while she was in the house with them, Lucy, who was washing, took the buckets and went for water. She got the buckets by the well and went into the mulberry lot, and took Walter, and made him say, "Good-bye, mamma, and good-bye papa." "What are you going to do, Lucy?" said I. She took up a large stone and struck him with it in the head, and he fell. I ran and said I was going to tell Miss Kate, and she caught me by the dress just as I was getting over the fence, and pulled me back and put the rock in my hand and made me strike him three times. I struck him in the stomach and two blows on his head. Lucy then put the straw over him, and a polk stalk on his face, and then ran with the water to the kitchen, and got in just as Mrs Graves came in with the jars. I was scared and asked her what she did it for, and she said Mrs. G. had whipped her Susey the day before I went there. Lucy made me do what I did, and said she would kill me if I did not. I loved Walter and his little sister, and wanted to tell Mrs. Graves, but was afraid. Lucy whipped Walter twice before that, in the buggy-house, and I showed the marks on his legs to his mother, and she scolded Lucy a little about it. I asked her what made her do it, and she told me to mind my own business. Lucy killed one of her own children—she says she smothered it in the night—but her Susey held it by the heels and let it drop on a rock on the top of its head. She also said she had killed one of her older ones, and that she did not mind killing niggers, and would kill me if I told where the child was. I was scared and was afraid of Lucy. I was the first to show where the child was, and would have done it sooner, but Lucy kept shaking her hands at me not to do it. I am sorry, but I can't say any prayers; nobody ever taught me any, and I never heard any, only a little boy saying his, and I did not stay there long, for I got the itch and they sent me away.

The woman Lucy was discharged, as nothing could be proved, though many think her guilty. The court-house was crowded to overflowing when the girl was sentenced, and great order prevailed. Many anticipated a mob, but the judge had impanneled the grand jury and petit jury in case of a mob instantly to subdue it.—Ex.

George Washington watch has turned up in Tennessee. It is in the hands of exrebel General Bushrod Johnson, who got it of Major Polk of Maury Country, Tennessee, who procured it from a Union soldier, who "found" it somewhere near Washington. The watch, which in a quaint old bull's-eye time piece, will be forwarded to General Robert E. Lee.

A Reminiscense of Henry Clay.

Men and women admire personal courage more than all the other personal attributes of the human mind. The virtus of the Romans was held in higher admiration than all the moral and intellectual qualities, and the enthusiasm which followed Generals Washington, Jackson, Harrison, Scott and Taylor, indicates that the advance of civilization has not destroyed that feeling of the human heart. As an illustration of the truth of this, it will not be out of place to relate an anecdote of Mr. Clay.

On his arrival at Lexington, Kentucky, a poor, friendless young man, with scanty means and limited education, he met with many obstacles to success in his profession, and like all young men in a new country, he was soon obliged to show his mettle, and earn his spurs. He found most of the positions of wealth and honor occupied by the Marsalls, Wickliffes, and other distinguished families.

Shortly after Mr. Clay had commenced the practice of law, some of these distinguished families had a personal rencontre with some ordinary man, who being so much superior physically, as he was inferior intellectually, was an over-match for one of the first families of Virginia, consequently had a great advantage in personal rencontre.

The cavalier blood of the Old Dominion forbade a resort to the ordinary method of getting satisfaction among gentlemen—a resort to the courts of the law the only remaining mode of redressing a personal indignity. In order to make the redress certain and effective, it was generally understood that inasmuch as the inequalities of the perties made it imyossible to meet upon the field of honor, yet if any gentleman chose to take up the quarrel or volunteered to defend their opponent, he would be held personally responsible Who that ever saw that high forehead bony face, expansive mouth, and thin lips, indicating the most elevated courage of Harry of the West, could doubt that he would desire no better opportunity to step forward in the defence. He did volunteer, add not being very apt to weigh his words or regard any personal consequences, as may be easily imagined, his first duel grew out of this transaction. That single act was worth to him in procuring friends and clients from the people, more than all his reading and information to be gathered in years of labor spent upon Coke or Bacon.

The people felt that there was a young man among them, that in any emergency of difficulty or danger they might safely "tie to" in the expressive phrases of the flat boatman.

Amorous but Unsuccessful.—A young man, whom, for the sake of convenience we will call John, went to visit the girl whom he would call his own. The fair one resides near the canal. During the evening the young man, of the name of John, was unable to conceal the wish of his heart, and in tender accents declared that the young lady must consent to be his. He met with a flat refusal. The ardent John still pressed her further, declaring that if she would not accept him he would then and there drown himself in the briny waters of the canal. As his threat did not affect the desired purpose, he proceeded to carry it out. He plunged fearlessly into the murky flood, and waded out until the chilly waters reached over his shoulders. It will be remembered that the evening on which this ocurred was not one of the warmest. Retreating before finally carrying out his out his purpose, John cried out, shivering with the cold:

"W-w-will you marry me now?"

"No!"

In he plunged again this time until the water reached his neck, and again he halted before the last plunge.

"W-w-will you marry me now?"

"No!"

Again he went in, this time going fairly under water, going fairly under water, so far that only the top of his head could be discovered above the surface, but he emerged, and staggered out of the canal, and shivering worse than ever, spluttered out:

"N-now, w-w-will you marry me?"

"No!"

"Well, I d-don't care a d-damn whether you'll marry me or not. You won't get me into that canal again!"

Nor did he again essay his fortunes in the uncertain deep. Shivering and chattering with his teeth, he quickly departed and returned to his home, a sadder and a wiser man.

A Man who Did't Want to be either Married or Murdered.

The infelicities and frequent separations of the married at Chicago seems to have caused a horror of matrimony among the bachelor fraternity in that city, which is well illustrated by the disgraceful means taken by one Burkard to break off an engagement made when he was drunk. He told his own story in court, where he appeared to have the "big brothers" of his affianced one put under bonds to keep the peace towards him.

Until a week ago, your honor, I was engaged to be married to Sally, the sister of the prisoners. I will not speak ill of her, though we are enemies now, for it is owing to my engagement that I took the pledge and am a sober man. You see, I was drunk when I proposed and was accepted. That showed me to what liquor could bring a man, and I at once took the pledge. I was engaged to her for three months, and during that time I did my duty. I visited her daily, took her to places of amusement, and I told her sweet lies. In fact, I did everything required except to name the marriage day. In that I procrastinated. I told her she did not know me well enough yet; that the weather was too warm, that she had better wait till the season was over; but it did no good. She insisted that we should be married at once; she had sworn she would be married before Mary B———, and she would be. I became desperate. I had no intention of marrying her or any one else. I know what matrimony is; I have been whipped by my father because my mother has happened to caress me. Not knowing what else to do, I pretended to be drunk when visiting Sally eight days ago. She had some friends with her in the parlor, and that pleased me. I kissed her, and tried to kiss them, male and female. Then I told her in a hic-coughfy way that I had been unable to get the false hair she wished, that they cost too much. That did the business. Indignant at thus apparently having her secret dearest exposed to the young ladies and gentlemen there, she angrily told me to go; that I must never come near her again. Believe me, Judge, I was happy to hear it, and left at once. I did not visit her, and three days afterwards I received a note from her telling me she was sick and wished to see me. Not being a doctor, I stayed away. The next day I received a similar note; my answer was the same. Then I received a note telling me I was a faithless brute and cruel wretch; and she had two big brothers (I knew it,) and they would at once avenge her wounded honor and broken heart by beating me; I believed, and had carefully avoided the big brothers. I am a law-abiding man, and do not wish to fight. They have been to see me eight times already; made the servant tell them a lie—may God forgive me—and say I was out. But I know they will catch me, and then I shall feel very bad. To prevent that I have had them arrested. I wish them bound over to keep the peace; they can also keep their sister Sally. They have said they would kill me.

Justice—"You were right to have them arrested. They must each give bonds in the sum of $500 to keep the peace. As for you, your conduct has been disgraceful. The name of my first love was Sally, and no one shall go back on a girl of that name. You are fined $15."

Conundrums.—Who is over head and ears in debt? He who has not paid for his hat. At what time should an innkeeper visit an iron foundry? When he wants a bar maid. Why is a mad bull an animal of convivial disposition? Because he offers a horn to every one he meets. Why are railway companies like laundresses? Because they have ironed the whole country, and sometimes do a little mangling.

The plural style of speaking (we) among kings was begun by Kingo Jhn of England, A. D 1119. Before that time soverigns used the singular person in their edicts. The German and French soverigns followed the example of, King John in 1250. When editors began to say "we" is not known.

A bashful young man escorted an equally bashful young lady. As they approached the dwelling of the damsel, she said entreatingly, "Jehial, don't tell anybody you beau'd me home." Sally," said he, emphatically, "don't you mind, I'm as much ashamed of it as your are."

Skeleton of a Mastodon Found.—Mr. J. B. Low, superintendent of the Kearsarge mine and mill, Kearsarge District, informs us that the skeleton of a mastodon in an excellent state of preservation has been discovered in Owen's Valley, about three miles from Fort Independence. The bones of the huge beast were found by a party of men who were engaged in digging a pit for a wheel to run an arastra, at the depth of ten or twelve feet, in a deposit of sand and gravel. Mr. Low was on the ground and examined the bones then remaining. These consisted of bones of a leg, several sections of the backbone, one jawbone and a number of ribs and teeth grinders. By stretching out the bones of the leg along the ground it appeared that the animal when living must have been at least fifteen feet high. Several of the grinders were six inches across the face, though not more than seven or eight inches in lenght. The ribs, which were about the width of a man's hand, were in the shape of a scythe or sabre, and appear to have been arranged edgewise upon the spine instead of flatwise, as is common with all animals of the present age. The parties who were digging up the bones allowed visitors to carry away teeth, ribs or anything they took a fancy to. It is likely that almost the perfect skeleton might have been obtained had the parties saved those found and gone a little out of their way in digging for others. By the side of the bones was a cedar log in a good state of preservation.

The American Squirrel.—Of this most beautiful, active and graceful of all the furried denizens of our woods and plains, there are no less than sixty known varieties, and the number will probably be increased when our Pacific possessions are more fully explored. To the sportsman east of the Rocky Mountains the most interesting species are the gray, the fox and the pine squirrel, called on the tide water of Maryland and Virginia the cat squirrel. The gray squirrel frequently migrates in vast numbers, and is then very destructive to the corn crop. To such an extent did their depredations reach in the colony of Pennsylvania, in the year 1749, as to excite the alarm of the authorities, and a bounty of three pence was offered for squirrel scalps; and the colomal treasury was depleted to the extent of eight thousand pounds and rendered nearly bankrupt, six hundred and forty thousand scalps having been paid for in a single year. In view of this fecundity, it is fortunate the squirrel has so many enemies, and probably the least distructive of them all is man. The black snake ascends to his nest, and at one fell swoop will destroy a whole litter; the rattlesnake, we are told, will paralyze poor bunny by the glitter of his eye and draws him on, an unresisting victim, into the jaws of death. But the owl is his greatest and most destructive enemy, as towards the close of the day he flits on noiseless wing through the darkening woods, and pounces on his unsuspecting prey. The red-tailed hawk is another of his foes, but he is an open enemy, and wages war magnanimously.

Santa Anna may thank his propitious star, if it be true, as Vera Cruz advices say, that his trial has resulted only in a sentence of "exile from the Mexican territory for eight years." There is something unaccountably clement in this sentence, considering at once the nature of the offenses, charged against him, the fear and the hostility of his rivals for power, into whose hands he fell, the violence and bloodthirstiness in the spirit of the times, and the worse punishments inflicted on better men. It is true that, in the course of nature, the old General is not long for this earth, and that therefore "eight years" is perhaps substantlly equivalent to a sentence of banishment for life. But still the judgment is a merciful one. Santa Anna used to have a business art at laying out money to advantage to get himself out of a tight place; but we cannot say that he did this, or even tried it, in this instance. However, Santa Anna will probably accept his fate with great equanimity. Whether he will choose again that "little watch-tower of St. Thomas," as he used to call it, for his place of banishment, remains to be seen. In any case, he finds himself poorer by a year or two of life and many thousands of dollars, and an exile after all.—N. Y. Times.

Wit and Humor.—"Pray, madam, why do you name your old hen Macduff?" Because, sir, I want her to lay on; lay on."

James Gordon Bennett is seventy one years old, and worth $3,000,000.

Arrested for Bigamy.

We copy below, an article, headed as above, from the Leavenworth Bulletin of Oct. 30th. To one who has been reared in Utah and accustomed to hear from his youth up, the doctrine of Polygamy preached and see it practiced by the rulers and Elders of the country, the reading of the extract must sound very strange. It will perhaps give him an insight into the light in which the practice of the "twin relic" is viewed by the people of that section.

We can assure all such, that the same adherence for the crime of bigamy here expressed, is entertained by all civilized and Christian countries.

Should the charge which the Bulletin brings against this man Downey, be proven on trial, then is his doom certain, nothing can save him, he will be hurled from his high position of trust and public confidence into the lowest abyss of degradation and shame; the prison doors will close on him for many years, and no amount of penitential tears will serve to wash out the stigma that will forever after be attached to his name.

How many men are there living in this city to-day, who are guilty of the same sin against God and their country? Men who have left wives and families in the States and coming hither have taken unto themselves other wives, not one only, but many. Here it is:

On Monday the usual quiet of our city was somewhat startled by the painful report that Samuel Downey, United States Assistant Assessor, had been arrested upon the charge of bigamy. The arrest was made by our authorities upon the testimony of the uncle of Mr. D.'s former wife, who is at present in the city, having arrived here some ten days ago. From all we can learn from the uncle, we take it that the circumstances under which he was arrested are substantially true, and brings to light a very unpleasant state of facts, and opens up to the world another instance of misplaced confidence upon the part of those who have trusted the "friend beyond a certain point." We do not know anything about the former character of the accused; nor do we wish to unearth the record of the past, as it has existed between the "man and wife." If he, when standing at the altar, before God, took the solemn oath, to love, cherish and protect the one he had chosen to share his joys and sorrows, and has since proved recreant to his high trust, to God alone must he answer for the terrible injury inflicted upon a loving wife and dependent children. For the sake of those for whom we entertain a respect, would we gladly omit to publish even an intimation of such a charge as heads this article, but when a case goes before the court, and the party is held to bail in a large sum for his future appearance, there are certainly grounds for complaint, and the case then belongs to the community, and the community have a right to understand the facts in regard to the parties concerned.

We learn that Mr. Downey was married about fourteen years ago, and has a wife and two children living in Wisconsin—a boy and a girl. The relations existing between the parties were pleasant so far as known by their friends. When the war broke out, Mr. Downey enlisted and went into the service as a musician. He was absent about one year, when he returned to visit his family. After his visit, he left for the war, and has since that time been "dead" to his family, his whereabouts not being known by his wife or friends. She supposed he was dead, and according to custom, mourned his loss, her friends supporting her, and enabling her chileren to obtain education. Days, months and years rolled on, and still no tidings came of the "lost sheep"—and his face was never expected to be seen again on earth. But, alas! Time changes! Man proposes; God disposes! Though under a mountain hid, still the eye of justice follows, and to-day, through accident, the recreant husband and father stands before the world a prisoner, accused of the terrible crime of bigamy! A husband loved! A father mourned by a loving wife and innocent children, has been found living with another, whom he has deceived, and, in part, must suffer his wrongs and sins—must bear the penalty of such a sin that will make "all around seem dark and drear." We deeply sympathize with those who have been made thus to suffer, and trust a silver lining will soon shine through the cloud of sorrow. We drop the veil over the afflicted family, trusting that time will correct the mistakes and heap up the broken and wounded hearts of those who have been so suddenly plunged into the pool of sorrow.

THE paid Fire Department of San Francisco costs per year, for salaries, $64,680: Chief Engineer, $3,000; two Assistant Engineers, (each $1,200), $2,400; Secretary, $1,200, etc.

PERSONAL.—The Denver News notices the departure of Mr. Sherwood from Wells, Fargo & Co.'s office in Denver to the same here in Salt Lake City.

ANONYMOUS.—We cannot, in conformity with our standing rule, publish any anonymous communications In this connection we are compelled to decline publishing a very prettily written letter from some one styling herself "a lady passenger on Wells, Fargo & Co.'s overland stage line from Salt Lake City to Cheyenne." We will say, however, that the lady speaks in high terms of the general good management of the route mentioned, and appears to have fallen in love with the good fare she received at Gilmore's Station, and "muchly taken" with the kind attentions shown her by that gallant little Local Agent, Dick Catlin.

RUNAWAY.—Our friend Richard A. Keyes, Esq., familiarly called "Dick" for short, had a very narrow escape on Friday afternoon last.

The young gentlemen was driving one of Faust & Co.'s Livery Teams down East Temple Street and, when opposite the Salt Lake House, the Horses taking fright at something made a dash for the stable and turning a short corner at South Second Street pitched Richard higher "nor a kite" and went on without him. To-day he is limping around with a sprained ancle and wrist, looking for all the world like one of the P. R. after a mill. It is a little remarkable that no one else was hurt as the streets were unusually crowded at the time.

A SCENE.—A scene occurred at our theatre one night last week that was not put down in the programme, had it been, we venture to say the receipts at the box office would have been somewhat less than they were; sensitive people much prefer that the habit of correcting young ladies should "be more honored in the breach than in the observance." The facts are these: A young lady seated in the parquette, while engaged in the customary and innocent occupation of gazing through her opera glass at the audience was rudely poked in the back with a cane in the hands of a high church dignitary, and commanded not to do so "some more." The young Miss was so overcome with shame and mortification at the public rebuke that she was thrown into hysterics and had to be carried out of the house. It is to be hoped that our noble friend will hereafter choose some fitter place and opportunity for the enforcement of his peculiar ideas of propriety.

From the West.

[From the Reese River Reveille.]

San Francisco, November 13.

Nothing thus far has been heard of the steamer California, which left this place twelve days ago for Portland, Oregon, as a consequence, fears are entertained on her account.

The owners of the Goodyear India Rubber patent sue Meyer Weil and Solomon A. Levy, of this city, for infringement of patent, and ask that they be compelled to pay over all the profits that have accrued to them through said infringement.

In the U. S. District Court to-day the title of the United States was confirmed to two leagues of land, known as the Tamalpais grant, in Marin Co., the claim of Hilaria Sanches to the same being rejected.

A number of prominent capitalists, including Messrs. Hayward, Ralston, McLean, Tevis and others have under consideration the establishment of a California Life Insurance company. The idea is suggested by the fact that the business is now in the hands of companies from abroad, which are making a great profit from California.

WANTED.—Prentice, of the Louisville Journal gets off the following (We have a cotemporary here that will just fill the bill)

"In an exchange, some one advertises: 'A vegetable cook and nurse wanted immediately.' 'Twould be wonderful to see a vegetable nursing, and funny to see it being nursed."

TO THE UNFORTUNATE.

NEW REMEDIES, NEW REMEDIES!

Dr. Gibbons' Dispensary,

616 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco. Established in 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken-down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible life-destroying maladies—see that they are cared for and cured before it bee too late. Send them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has made private disease his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any other injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of those charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self-abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practised by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing, with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes; pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, feted breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

MARRIED MEN,

Or those who contemplate marriage, who are suffering under any of these fearful maladies, should not forget the sacred responsibility resting upon them, or delay to obtain immediate relief.

TO THE LADIES.

The various complicated and distressing diseases incident to females, treated with eminent success. Such as Suppressions, Irregularities, Whites, Falling of the Womb, Tumors, all Urinary Diseases, Nervous Debility, Painful or Difficult Mensuration, Barrenness, etc., will be speedily cured, without poisonous drugs, injuries or unpalatable medicines of any kind. Have no delicacy in calling, no difference what your troubles may be. The afflicted are cordially invited to call and satisfy themselves.

Persons calling at Dr. Gibbon's office or sending for packages of medicines, may rely upon his assurances of confidential secrecy with implicit faith, and expect no more than to be charged with, a fair, and mutually satisfactory remuneration for services rendered, considering the circumstances and difficulties of cases, rather than a too prevalent and selfish practice of extortion among quacks and pretenders.

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

CURED AT HOME.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions for use. By enclosing $15 in currency or $10 in coin, in a registered letter, through the Postoffice or through Wells, Fargo & Co., a package of medicine will be forwarded by express to any part of the Union.

Address DR. J. F. GIBBON, 616 Kearney street, corner of Commercial, San Francisco. Post Office Box 252.

Consultation FREE:

☞Correspondents will please inform DR. GIBBON that they read his advertisement in the VEDETTE. 9 10-1y
